

Front-end designer

Enfocus is a leading software company specializing in the development of tools to control the quality of PDF files for print and to automate workflow processes in the graphic arts industry. The company's innovative solutions streamline the workflow throughout the complete production chain – from design to final print – thereby connecting printers, publishers and designers. Enfocus is a business unit of Esko with headquarters in Ghent (Belgium).

The Enfocus sky team is an R&D team which is responsible for the Enfocus online services and integrations and we are currently looking for an experienced Front-end designer.

Your responsibilities:

- You participate in our scrum team and you have the end responsibility for all customer facing stories.
- You are able to create innovative design, contributing actively to our corporate style
- You work closely with Marketing and Product Management, but also communicate with Sales and Support
- Thanks to your UX input, our customers can be sure of a smooth experience with our products
- You help with testing, making sure we keep on delivering top notch solutions

What we are looking for:

- High quality and creative web designs is in your genes.
- You quickly get around our corporate styling and make it your own
- Responsiveness is one of your middle names
- UX is what you breathe.
- HTML (5), CSS, Javascript is on your tongue, with perhaps a little salty PHP (Drupal).
- Automatic front-end testing is in your mind.
- Photoshop has no secrets for you
- Your soul says: you can do it!
- Scrum is the road you ride on.
- Your work is your pride.
- Your customers are your children.
- And your colleagues are one big family!

Do you recognize yourself in this description? We would love to hear from you!
